PROJECT CLOSURE REPORT

TO,

HOI/PRINCIPAL/DIRECTOR/DEAN OF THE SCHOOL

Address

1. Project Title: The Impact of Deforestation On Soil Fertility.
2. Keywords: Forest, Deforestation, Soil and its fertility.
3. Problem Identified: Deforestation in India is the widespread destruction of major forest in India. It is mainly caused by environment degradation by stakeholders such as formers, ranches, loggers and plantation corporations. In 2009, India ranked 10th worldwide in the amount of forest loss, where world annual deforestation is estimated as 13.7 million hectares (34×10^6 acres) a year.
4. Problem Details: Logging and subsequently harvesting trees removes nutrients, like phosphates, from the system. The removal of the vegetation that would also normally act as a protective cover and windbreak increase the rain drop impact and wind velocity, whilst simultaneously decreasing the humus contents. This accelerates soil erosion from wind and rain splash. Reduce humus content means there is less infiltration and the soil is looser, and so is more easily eroded and removed from the area in runoff. Removal of root systems reduces the root binding effect that gives the soil structure and holds it together a further impact of deforestation is the reduced evapotranspiration rate, leading to decreased humidity and therefore a reduced regional rainfall.
5. Problem, solution suggestion:
 - The best solution to deforestation is to curb the felling to trees by enforcing a series of rules and laws to govern it.
 - Banning clear-cutting of forests is will curb the total depletion of forest cover.
 - Reforestation and Afforestation

- Educate your friends, family and community by sharing the deforestation facts, and its causes and effects.

Title of Project	“Customers Inclination of Organized Retail Sectors in India with Reference to Major Cities of Chhattisgarh.”
Principal Investigator Name	Dr. Richa Handa
Co-Investigator Name	Dr. Bijoy Karmakar
Duration	1 Year
Problem Identified	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. To identify the preference level of the customers of Chhattisgarh towards the changing retail environment.2. To identify if the customer preference for organized retail is dependent on perception or not.3. To identify the major factors affecting customer perception about organized retailing in Chhattisgarh.4. To identify the scope and future prospects of organized retailing in Chhattisgarh. To understand the expectations of customers from the new retail formats.
Problem Details	The challenges currently faced by the Indian organized retail sector are various and these are stopping the Indian retail industry from reaching its full potential. Retailers have got many opportunities to make most of the retailing business by adopting some strategies to eliminate problems as well as to suit the customers' requirements.
Solutions Suggested	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. unorganized retailer should endeavor to add more variety of household cleaning products, packaged food and fruits & vegetables in their outlet.2. Unorganized retailer should therefore focus on the staples that are essential for the given locality, in terms of availability, quality and variety.3. Unorganized retailers should leverage cost effective technologies such as SMS, e-mail, etc to extend the reach of his personal touch with consumers.
